- Branding and corporate guidelines
- Requirements (business, client, user, service provider)
- Discoveries (e.g., research, A/B testing)
- Design practice (e.g., human-machine interaction, heuristics)
- Niche (e.g., music tech applies skeuomorphism)
- Use case (e.g., industrial interfaces are made for practicality, not hedonism)

PRINCIPLES

Where possible, and subject to requirements, I apply the following principles in the visual design process:

- 3 color rule
- Gestalt psychology
- Rule of thirds
- Color harmony and balance
- 8px rule

ASGARD (Virtual Music Instrument plugin, software)

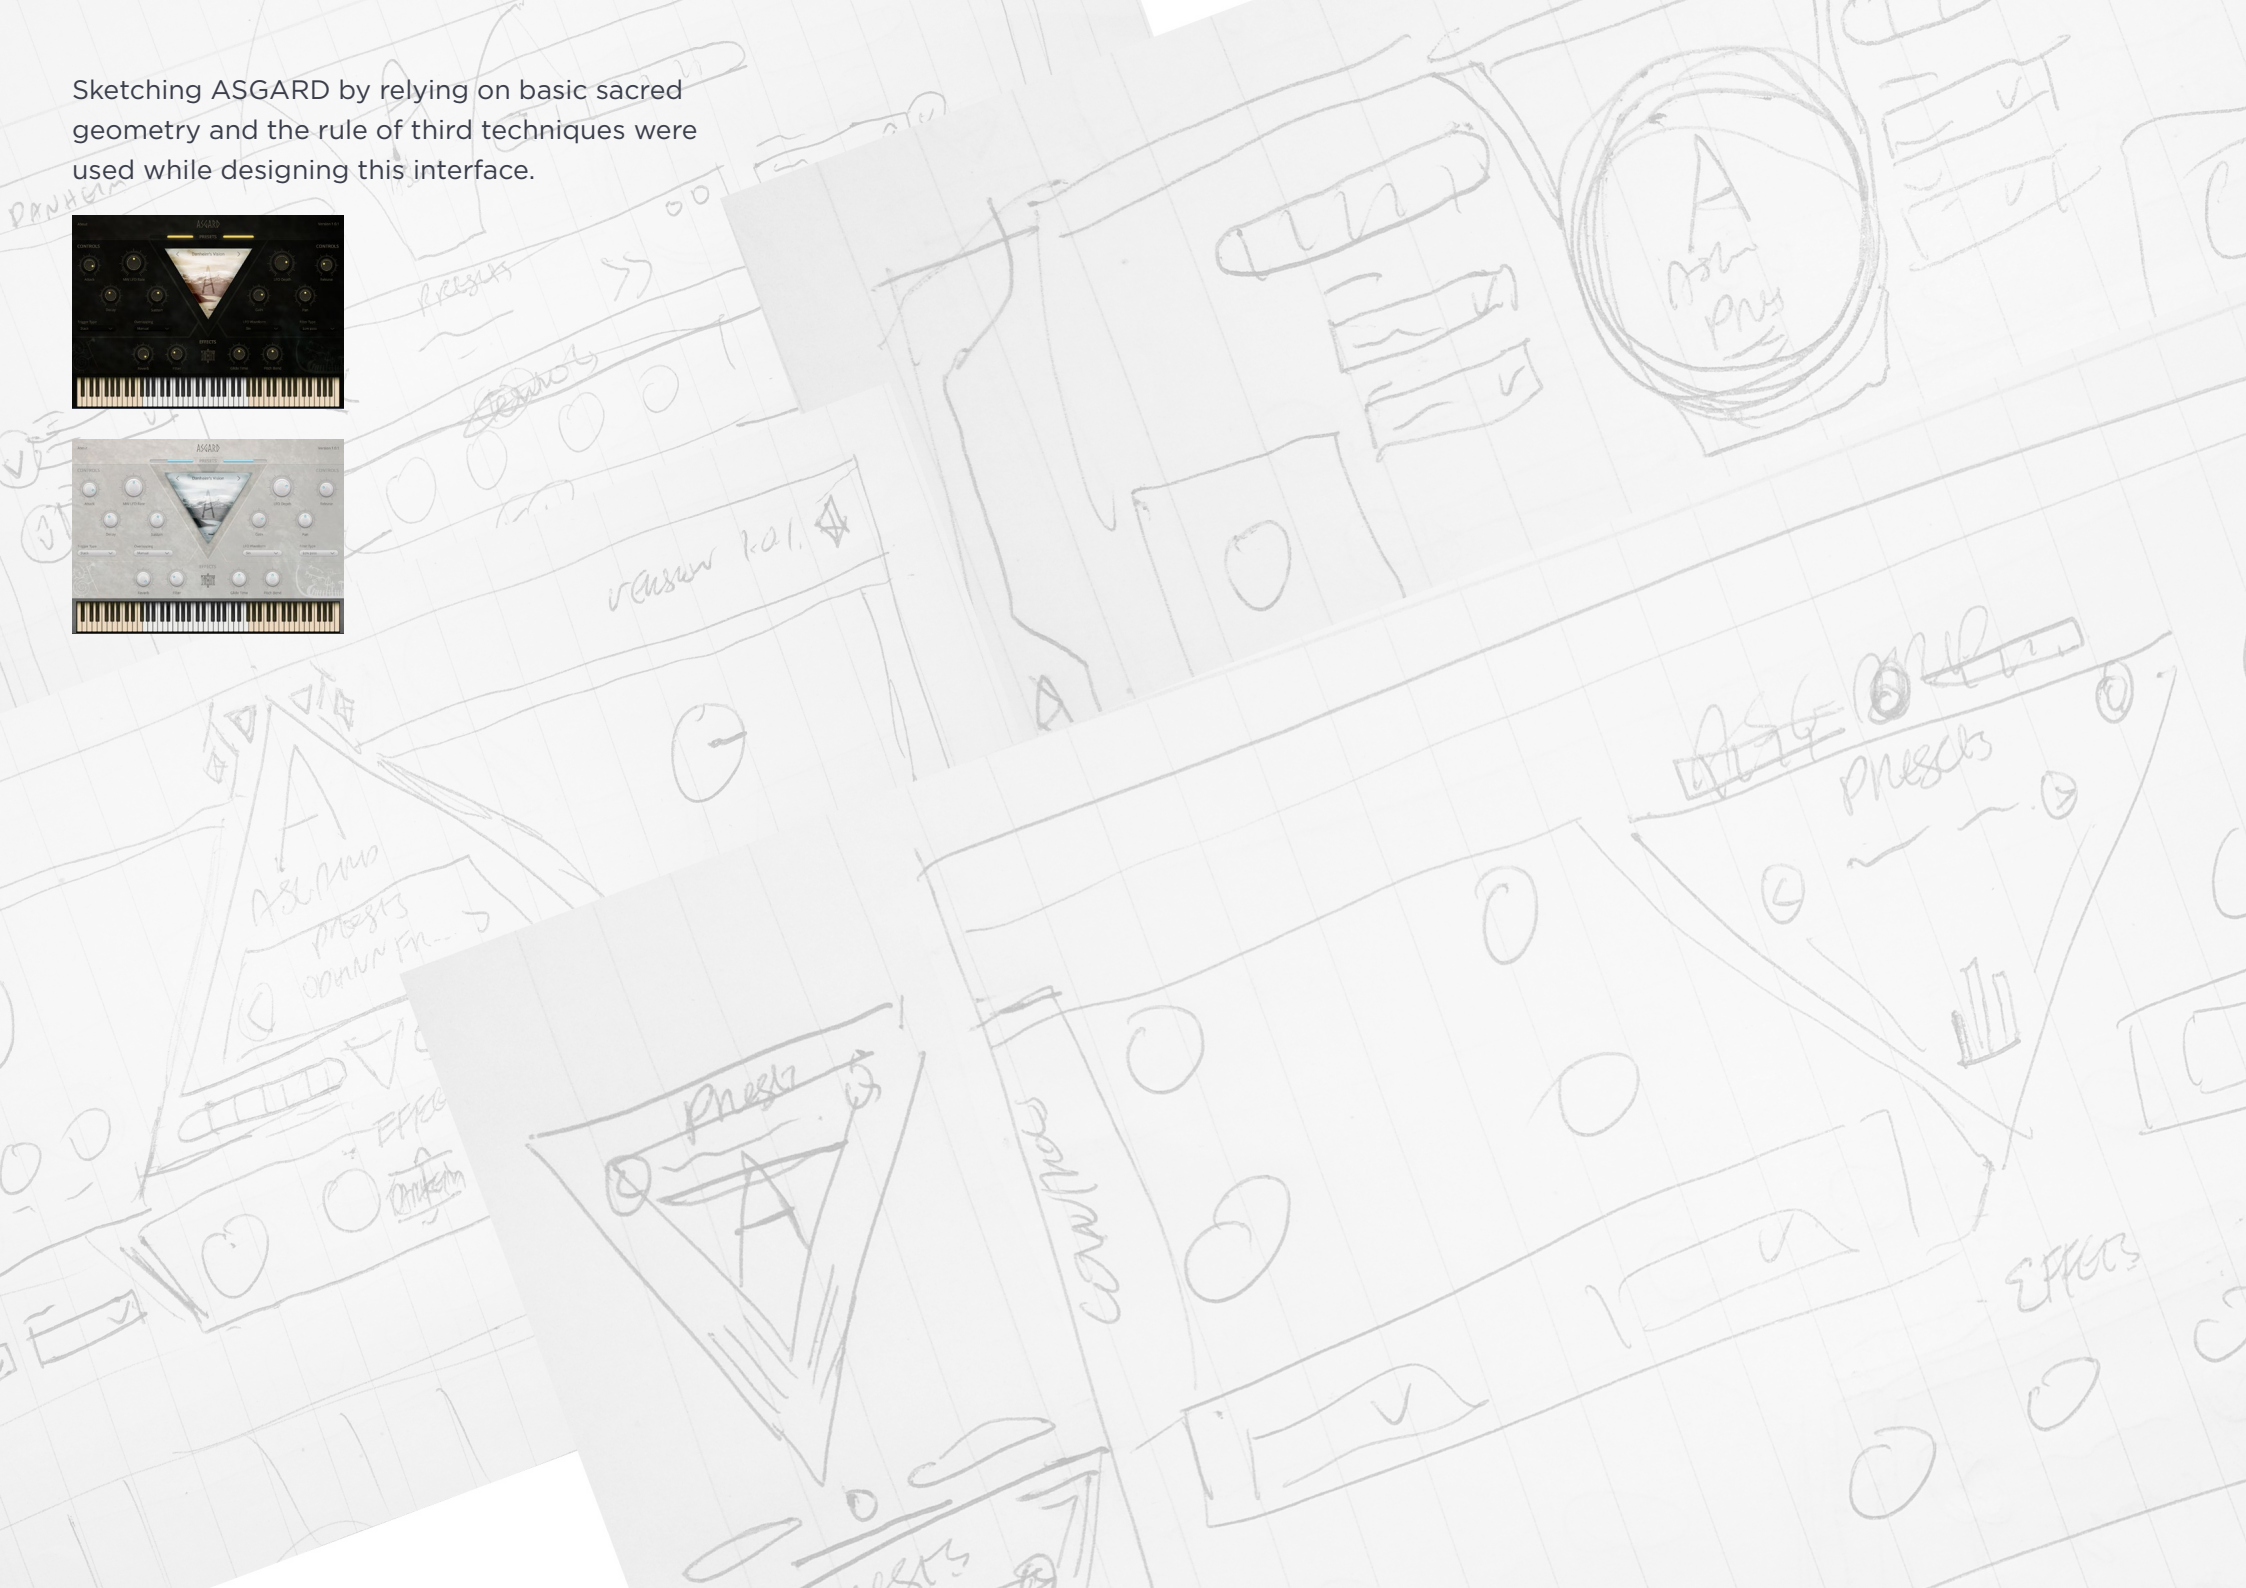

Darksichord (Virtual Music Instrument plugin, software)

Horror Box XL (Sound Design plugin, software)

Sketching ASGARD by relying on basic sacred geometry and the rule of third techniques were used while designing this interface.

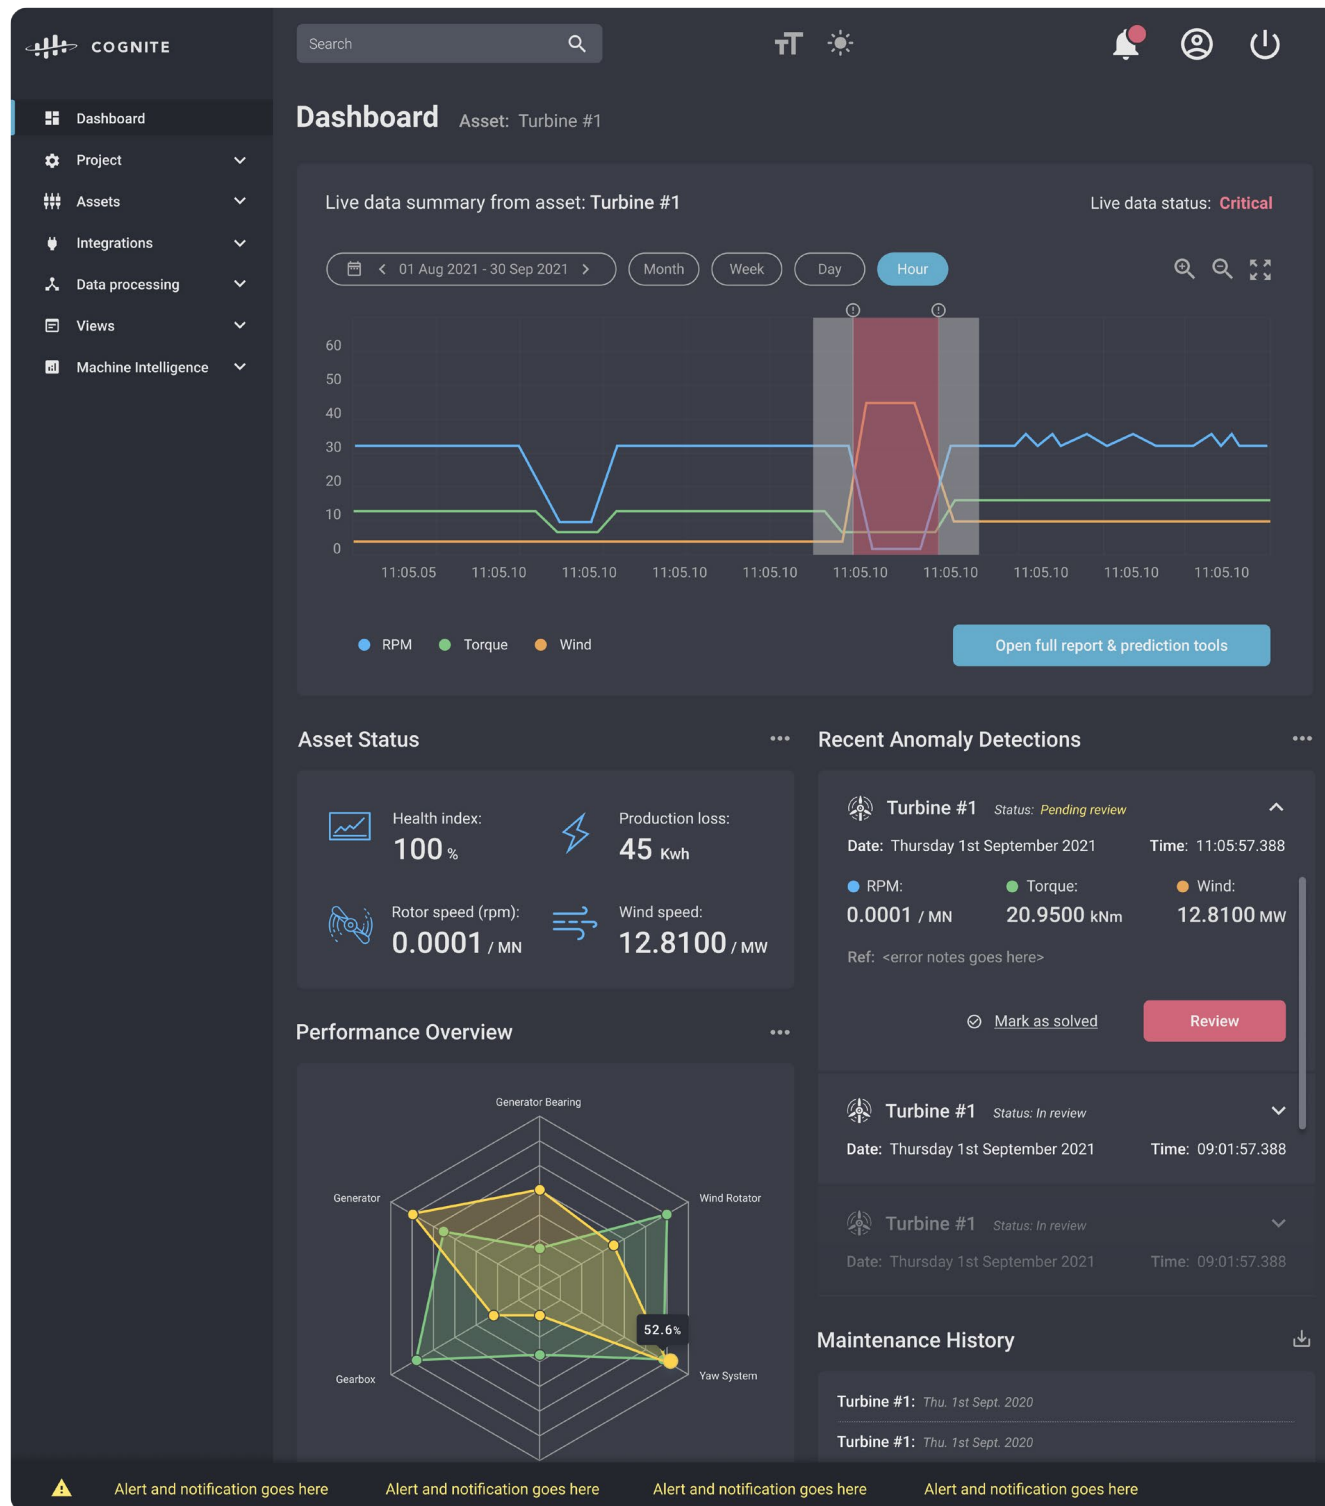

TURBINE MONITORING DASHBOARD

An HMI interface concept for engineers to monitor turbines.

This is an interface designed for industry usage by adhering with ISO criteria and other industrial design best practices.

These interfaces are designed for practical usage, not hedonism, hence the prominent oversized elements (so engineers can read from the distance) in addition to flat colors aimed at reducing eye strain.
